

Student Learning Outcomes

College: Health and Human Services

Department: Public Health Sciences

Degree Program: PhD in Public Health Sciences

- 1) Graduates will possess and apply core public health knowledge and skills and demonstrate mastery of a specialized area.
- 2) Graduates will be able to design and analyze behavioral science research relating to public health using advanced quantitative and qualitative methods.
- 3) Graduates will be able to conduct research on social and behavioral factors in a variety of public health and community settings.
- 4) Graduates will communicate and disseminate behavioral science knowledge to community/lay, practitioner, academic, and scientific audiences.
- 5) Graduates will be able to engage in culturally competent and ethically sound research practices.